

Cutleaf Evening Primrose

Description: native; blooms from late spring to early fall; flowers open at night and close when hit by strong sunlight; seeds are eaten by Bobwhite Quail, Mourning Doves and other birds

Family: Onagraceae

Scientific name:
Oenothera laciniata

For more information about NATL plants, visit <http://natl.ifas.ufl.edu/plants.htm>